Chanceland sweeps yearling show championships

Bob Manfuso and Katy Voss' Noble Mission (GB) colt is their fourth champion in the past seven years.

If you attended the Maryland Horse Breeders Association's 83rd annual yearling show—and maybe even if you didn't—you heard the cheers from the far side of the ring as the results of the championship class were announced.

"Whooooooo," went the call from Sally Eck and the Chanceland Farm crew as the Howard County farm swept the champion and reserve champion honors at the Show June 25 at the Timonium Fairgrounds. Judge Dale Romans chose a bay colt by

Noble Mission (GB) and the Speightstown mare Island Bound as champion while a bay daughter of Bullsbay and the Mineshaft mare Sheave won the reserve title. The two Chanceland-raised yearlings topped the day's other class winners—a Bandbox colt bred and owned by Hillwood Stables and a Mojave Moon filly bred and owned by Bonita Farm. The day featured its usual four classes and 113 entries all competing for ribbons, trophies, grooms' awards, prize money and $40,000 in purse premiums for racetrack performances.

Eclipse Award and classic-winning trainer Romans judged each class with the help of his partner Tammy Fox, and liked what he saw.

"I was very impressed with the whole event," he said. "It was a lot more stressful than I expected because you could feel the importance for everybody. But it was a lot of fun. I know how much work goes into raising a horse, so you take it seriously and make a good decision. The pride of the Maryland breeder is second to none. It's very impressive."

The champion caught Romans' eye, but was tough for anyone to ignore.

"The colt just has that smooth Northern Dancer-type look that I like in a horse," said Romans. "He's a young horse (foaled April 18) so he's got time to grow up. I don't know if any of that (Northern Dancer blood) is there but that's what it looks like."

The colt traces to Northern Dancer on the sire side via Noble Mission's sire Galileo (Ire), whose sire Sadler's Wells was by Northern Dancer.

Bred by Chanceland partners Bob Manfuso and Katy Voss, the bay colt strolled the ring with a purpose and brought plenty of flash with four white socks of varying lengths. That physical image and a foaling date were all Romans had to go on, but the colt brought plenty of pedigree too. Noble Mission, a Group 1 winner, European champion and full-brother to European superstar Frankel (GB), stands at Lane's End Farm in Kentucky. Dam, Island Bound, won a Grade 3 stakes and four other races for Manfuso. Her two other foals, a 2014 Tiznow colt who sold for $500,000 as a yearling and a 2015 Animal Kingdom filly, have yet to race.

The colt won Class II, for colts and geldings by sires standing outside of Maryland, by edging three from Dark Hollow Farm—Bodemeister colts out of Plum and Safe Journey and a Tapizar colt out of Red's Round Table. Sagamore Farm's Super Saver colt out of Roadtohanna (whose sister won the 2016 show) finished fifth.

"He was kind of a pick of all the guys on the farm," said Chanceland's Tommy Cashman, who led the colt in the ring for the final. "He looks like a little speedball. We were kind of hoping he would get in there and get some recognition. The little colt is proud of himself. He walks like he's going somewhere, which you like to see."

Barely outdone, the reserve champion is a long, tall classic bay with a tiny star between her eyes. Bred by Manfuso, she won the day's final class, for fillies by non-Maryland sires, and returned quickly for the championship round. Again, Romans had no pedigree information, but tapped one of the program's standouts as the daughter of regional stallion Bullsbay (who has stood in Pennsylvania and Maryland) is a half-sister to Grade 1 winner Cathryn Sophia.

"She's big and strong, built correct, moved well," said Romans. "She just looked like class."

When he found out her breeding, Romans was even more confident in his opinion.

"It makes me think I might have done something right," he said. "It was very close to which one was going to be the champion and which one was going to be the reserve. That's a nice, nice filly and he's a very nice colt too."

Manfuso paid credit to everyone at Chanceland, which won its seventh championship and duplicated the 1-2 finish of 1992.

"They're both solid horses and I'd like to say we're smart but I think we're more fortunate to have a good team working for us," he said. "It's absolutely exciting to be honored like that. It's just a credit to our crew. They have a passion about the business. It's more than a job. They take a lot of pride, an incredible amount of pride, in their work."

Manfuso said the colt will likely be offered in a fall sale while the filly will be kept to race. Regardless, both were headed back to the fields at Chancelance for a month.

"They'll go back out in the field tonight and probably the first of August we'll start breaking them under saddle," said Cashman of the 15 Chanceland yearlings who took part in the show. "They'll get a little vacation now and get ornery and then we'll start all over again."

Class III: Bonita Farm's homebred filly by home stallion Mojave Moon, handled by Kim Boniface, with Bill Boniface accepting the blue ribbon and trophy from Joe Clancy and Michelle Jennings.

Christy Claggett was selected the grooms award winner of Class III for the Great Notion filly bred and owned by Sweet Spirits Stables. Bill Reightler presents the check.

Class IV: Bullsbay filly was the second class winner of the day for Chanceland Farm. John Price (center) and Frank Vespe of The Racing Biz (second right) presented the trophy and ribbon to Katy Voss and Bob Manfuso.

The filly won Class IV, which included four Chanceland horses in the final five. The interloper was the runner-up, an El Padrino filly bred and owned by Sallyellen and Hugh Hurst.

Ellen Charles' Hillwood Stables won the opening class, for colts and geldings by Maryland-based sires, with a homebred son of Bandbox. Also raced by Hillwood, Bandbox stands at Northview Stallion Station and took home the trophy as the show's leading sire with a class win and a fifth from five horses shown. Named Hello Amigo, the Class I winner edged a Friesan Fire colt from Chanceland, a Tritap colt owned and co-bred by Jay Williamson and two colts by Super Ninety Nine.

In Class III, for fillies by Maryland-based sires, Bonita Farm finished first and third with daughters of Mojave Moon and Etched who were so close they shared a stall for the day.

"That's my fault," said Bonita's John Boniface as the fillies happily shared a flake of hay. "I didn't come down here yesterday and organize. The girls got here today and we hustled three stalls together for the three boys to keep them happy, but couldn't get two together for the girls. This has worked out, but it's going to be a little hairy when it's time to go back for that [championship] class."

No matter, they looked good when it came time to show. The class winner is a homebred from the Ops Smile mare A Queen's Smile and a half-sister to four winners. Her best friend, out of the Meadow Monster mare Rhythmically, belongs to owners/breeders Monica and John Ryan of New Jersey.

Like Chanceland, Bonita has been a long-time participant at the show.

"It's exciting to win and to have someone recognize your horse," said Boniface. "They come here and learn. It's good for them. You put them on the trailer, take them off the farm, expose them to new things. We brought [graded stakes winner and 1995 Preakness runner-up] Oliver's Twist here, Earth to Jackie, we brought so many here over the years that benefited just from coming. I like the history of the whole thing too."

First Maryland Thoroughbred Career Program deemed a hit

By Sara Gordon

Six college students interested in careers in the Thoroughbred industry took part in the inaugural Maryland Thoroughbred Career Program June 5-10.

The program, offered by the Maryland Horse Industry Foundation within the Maryland Horse Breeders Association, attracted 13 original applicants and emphasized providing an introduction to the industry and the various careers associated with it.

Jordyn Egan, director of development for the MHIF, spearheaded the program and was involved from start to finish, including conducting the interview process and selection of participants for the program. She also served as the primary coordinator, traveling with the group throughout the week.

“Our goal was simple, to introduce a group of equine-inclined youth to the variety of opportunities in the Thoroughbred industry and help them define the next steps on their career paths,” she said. “We had a feeling that there would be interest in the program, but were blown away by the quality of applicants.”

The six young adults selected for the program came together because of a common interest in being a part of the industry, but their career aspirations varied.

Tabitha Gregory of Frederick, Md., has a special interest in equine nutrition and metabolic processes. Katie Brooks of Columbia, Md., was initially interested in a pre-vet track, but since gaining experience in reproduction, has become open to exploring new options. Megan George of Reisterstown, Md., plans to continue to follow her pre-vet track, but also wants to explore opportunities involving breeding and training. John Piasek of Cranford, N.J., is interested in the business side of the industry, including handicapping and racing journalism. Sidney Boots of Lexington, Ky., has a strong interest in fan education and agro-tourism, but she admits her passion for the industry keeps her eyes open to every opportunity available.

The program was uniquely tailored to suit each participant's area of interest, while remaining a broad overview of the industry. The first day included an introduction to the MHBA, along with the Maryland Horse Industry Board, Maryland Racing Commission, and the Mid-Atlantic Thoroughbred publication team. Students were educated about the purpose of each entity and provided an overview of the Maryland horse industry, from Ross Peddicord, executive director of the MHIB. The sessions also included an explanation of the regulations within the industry, as enforced by the racing commission.

The second and third days were filled with plenty of travel as the MTCP group ventured to and received behind-the-scenes looks at: Fair Hill Training Center, Northview Stallion Station, Heritage Stallions, Chanceland Farm, Country Life Farm, Merryland Farm, and The Mill of Bel Air. Participants saw the daily operations of a training facility away from the racetrack, a live breeding, as well as the opportunity to meet some of the state's top stallions.

At Fair Hill, participants had the chance to talk to trainer Mike Trombetta and watch as his horses breezed on the track. The day also included a tour of the Fair Hill Equine Therapy Center, with a chance to hear from Bruce Jackson about how he created the facility. A quick trip to the office of Joe Clancy allowed participants to hear from him about his roles with Mid-Atlantic Thoroughbred magazine, The Saratoga Special, and his other journalistic and business endeavors. Afterward, the group met Dr. Kathy Anderson of Equine Veterinary Care at Fair Hill, also receiving a tour of her facility that specializes in Thoroughbreds and Sport-horses.

Students were provided close-up access to a cross-section of the industry while making field trips across the state. Tours included (from top): Mike Trombetta's training barn at Fair Hill; the Fair Hill steeplechase course with Joe Clancy; and a visit to Laurel Park, where Maryland Jockey Club president and general manager Sal Sinatra sat down to discuss racetrack management, and the group hung out with the track's starting gate crew.

During a visit with Michelle Jennings, an equine nutritionist at The Mill, interns learned how she assists clients in selecting the proper diet for their equines. Northview stallion manager Francisco Torres introduced the students to stallions Redeemed and Great Notion. Louis Merryman, general manager of Heritage, gave students a chance to watch a live breeding with the stallion Bourbon Courage.

"I was very familiar with the front side of racing, but not so much as to the backstretch, farming, and the like," said Piasek. "Getting to experience those aspects, and therefore gain a fuller understanding of how racing works in Maryland, was something I was looking forward to."

The following day was spent at Laurel Park, starting in the racing office with assistant racing secretary Jillian Tullock. Students met Willie White, the president of the MHBA, as well as David Richardson of the Maryland Thoroughbred Horseman's Association, and Tom LaMarra, the managing editor of THAracing.com. Students learned about the purpose of the MTHA within the state's industry, as well as the new programs that have been implemented, including Beyond the Wire, which focuses on Thoroughbred aftercare.

A common theme among all of the speakers was providing opportunities to include a younger generation into the industry. "It's always on my mind. . . how do we get the young people to appreciate this opportunity?" said White.

8 The afternoon concluded with a visit to Steuart Pittman's Dodon Farm, bringing the overview full circle with a visit to a Thoroughbred retraining facility and learn about Pittman's Retired Racehorse Project. The program promotes and awards the retraining of retired racehorses, culminating with a competition each fall, at the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington. The project promotes the versatility of Thoroughbreds, even after their racing careers have ended.

The next morning started bright and early with a tour of Sagamore Farm in Baltimore County. Jocelyn Brooks provided MTCP with a tour of the breeding and training farm. The importance of detail in maintaining such a large facility was emphasized, touching on everything from the process of reseeded pastures to gate training young horses. After Sagamore, the group visited the Maryland Hunt Cup steeplechase course, with some insight provided by photographer Anne Litz.

"Everyone we met was so kind and I felt that they genuinely wanted us to be a part of the industry," said Gregory.

"We had so many people tell us that we could come back and spend a day with them and learn more about what they do."

A trip to Dark Hollow Farm, owned and operated by JoAnn and David Hayden, gave students a look at a smaller scale breeding facility. The Haydens personal story of their entry into the racing industry exemplified that it is not necessary to be born into a racing family and that it is possible to make your own way and be successful. The day wrapped up with lunch at the Grandstand Grille in Timonium, with sales consignee Bill Reightler, who discussed the lengthy process of participating in the Fasig-Tipton yearling sale, at the state fairgrounds in Timonium.

The week ended with a day at Laurel Park. Students sat down with Maryland Jockey Club president and general manager Sal Sinatra, who discussed racetrack management. MJC staffers Carrie Everly (marketing), Phoebe Hayes (horsemen's relations) and Danell Bajkowski (sales and operations) also added perspective on their various areas of expertise.

Students also had the opportunity to hear from Frank Vespe, the founder and publisher of The Racing Biz and Jim Steele, the manager of Shamrock Farm in Woodbine. The day concluded with a tour of the backside and a catered lunch, as a part of Maryland Horse Council's Day at the Races.

"The most important thing I learned during the week was that there are so many options in working in the Thoroughbred industry," said Boots. "I had an idea of some things that I could do with horses, but I think it was important to see actual people in those roles and hear from them [in] the different paths they took to reach that point. It made entering the industry a lot less intimidating."

New York-based racing apparel company Embrace The Race helped sponsor the program, outfitting the students in custom MTCP hats and shirts as a way to connect with industry newcomers.

"For us, it helps to be involved with anything that promotes racing and promotes people getting involved in racing," said Mike DeAnzeris of Embrace The Race. "I think it was a really good program and we're happy to be part of it."

Despite the short timeframe, the MTCP offered students insight and exposure to nearly every aspect of the state's Thoroughbred industry. Interns met many of the top leaders, made important connections with industry professionals, and started the conversations necessary to navigate the steps needed for future employment within the sport.

This year's class will serve as ambassadors for the program, all committed to dedicating their career goals to become, in some form, a part of the Maryland Thoroughbred world. With two of the six participants from outside the state, Egan says she plans to open the program to attract others into Maryland, even considering heading out on the road to recruit students from out of state. Based upon the success in the first year, and the enthusiasm that it generated, the program's future looks bright in creating the bridge to guide young racing enthusiasts into becoming industry professionals.

"The inaugural group of six was made up of intelligent, kind, passionate people; the possibilities are truly endless for them," Egan said. "We are extremely grateful to the host facilities that welcomed us with open arms and look forward to doing it all again next year." 🐾

Winners Circle Partners VIII's lightly-raced homebred Daylight Ahead broke on top and never looked back, stubbornly holding off defending champion Lovable Lady down the stretch to earn her first career stakes victory in the $75,000 Jameela June 24 at Laurel Park.

Based at Laurel with trainer Hugh McMahon, Daylight Ahead was making her third career stakes start, and second straight off a third-place finish in the Blue Sparkler in late May at Monmouth Park under Katie Davis, who earned a return call for the Jameela.

Daylight Ahead outsprinted Everything Lovely and seven other Maryland-bred or sired fillies and mares for the lead after a quarter-mile in a sizzling 22.97 seconds and ran the half in :45.77 as Lovable Lady moved closer to challenge on her outside. Daylight Ahead came under a ride approaching the head of the lane and had to contend with Lovable Lady from mid-stretch to the wire but refused to let her by, scoring by a neck. Final time for the 6 furlongs was 1:09.13 over the Fort Marcy turf course.

The 4-year-old daughter of Mineshaft has now won four of 10 lifetime starts, for earnings of $167,838.

Maryland-based Winners Circle Partners, managed by Stewart Nickel, was formed in 2004. Among partnership runners over the years was the winning Seeking Daylight mare Seeking Options, whose first two foals are full sisters Mine o' Mine, an earner of $109,133, and Daylight Ahead. The mare's current 3-year-old Crescent Warrior, a son of Majestic Warrior, is winless in four starts for Nickel; the mare has a 2-year-old colt by Tiz Wonderful named Arbitrage and produced a colt by Bayern this past March.

Clark S, Find S. 2017: 1st $75,000 Mister Diz S, 6 fur., turf, registered Md.-bred or sired, 3 & up, Laurel, June 24.

Hillwood Stables' Maryland-bred turf champion Phlash Phelps, racing for the first time in seven months at a distance he hadn't tried in more than two years, rallied to the lead in mid-stretch and held off a pair of late longshot challengers to win the $75,000 Mister Diz at Laurel Park June 24.

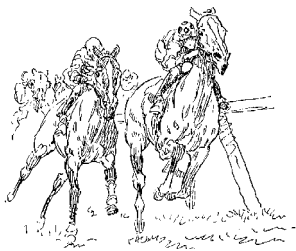

Narrowly favored at 5-2 in a competitive field of 11 older horses, the son of Northview Stallion Station sire Great Notion trained by Rodney Jenkins ran 6 furlongs in 1:08.40 over a firm Fort Marcy Turf Course to win by a neck over English Minister. It was another neck back to late-running Talk Show Man in third.

Phlash Phelps, with regular rider Victor Carrasco aboard, had last raced at a sprint distance in his April 2015 maiden victory going 5 furlongs. In 17 lifetime starts, he has earned $382,186, with a record of seven wins, three seconds and two thirds.

Bred by Carol A. Kaye, Phlash Phelps was sold as a yearling at the 2012 Fasig-Tipton Midlantic sale to Ellen Charles (Hillwood Stables) for $85,000. A half-brother to 2012 Maryland-bred champion sprinter Action Andy, a seven-time stakes winner of $673,390, he is out of the Not For Love mare Love Me Twice. His second dam, stakes-placed Gabby's Love (by Perkin Warbeck) produced stakes winners Baltimore Bob, Baltimore Belle and Gabianna.

Love Me Twice is the dam of eight named foals, including a yearling colt by Paddy O'Prado purchased privately by Charles and now named Love Me Thrice. The mare produced a colt by Jack Milton in April and was bred back to Golden Lad.
